Jacque Durfey

Jacque Durfey serves as Chief Executive Officer at Revere Health. In this role, she works to optimize clinic processes and support staff who directly facilitate patient care. Jacque has a deep appreciation for the work of physicians, advanced practice providers, and care teams, and is committed to upholding Revere Health's mission to deliver high-quality care in all the communities it serves.

Jacque has been in the healthcare industry for more than 30 years, primarily in group practice management. Jacque holds a Bachelor's degree in Business Management from the University of Phoenix and earned her Master of Business Administration from Western Governors University. Her leadership is grounded in a passion for healthcare, and she appreciates the opportunity to serve and support individuals on their health journeys.

Outside of work, Jacque enjoys spending time with her husband and family. A lover of the outdoors and an avid baseball fan, she also enjoys traveling and making memories wherever life takes her.

Thank you for your interest in Revere Health—whether you're a recent graduate looking to establish your practice or a veteran physician seeking a change, I'm confident you can find your healthcare home here.

It's my privilege to lead an organization that is truly committed to reversing the unsustainable trend of rising healthcare costs. As Utah's population has boomed over the last decade, there is an even greater need to provide residents with high-quality, low-cost healthcare options. We practice a concept called "value-based care," which incentivizes providers based on their ability to reduce costs and improve health outcomes for patients.

Founded more than 50 years ago, Revere Health is an established organization with a strong reputation in the communities we serve. From a business standpoint, our revenue is healthy, and our trajectory is positive.

Revere Health is owned and led by our physicians, which gives them the autonomy and incentive to act in the best interest of our patients. When we meet our goals for improved patient health outcomes, our physicians and staff are rewarded based on this shared success. If you'd like to learn more about Revere Health and how we consistently put our patients' health "above all else," I encourage you to visit our website at www.reverehealth.com.

Best Regards,

Jacque Durfey, CEO

Revere Health was founded in 1969 by three internal medicine specialists in Provo, Utah, and has grown into a statewide clinic network today. We now offer more than 30 medical specialties, including primary care, specialty medicine, and surgery care, to patients at all stages of life. Revere Health operates in more than 100 urban and rural locations throughout Utah.

In the last decade, Revere Health has led the nation in practicing “value-based care.” This system aims to reverse the unsustainable trend of rising healthcare costs by incentivizing providers based on value, not volume, of services.

Our national leadership is evidenced by the fact that we were the first Accountable Care Organization (ACO) accredited by Medicare in Utah/ We strive to keep medical costs at a minimum while providing the utmost in quality healthcare.

Core Values

ACCOUNTABILITY

We take responsibility for our actions and are committed to ensuring transparency and integrity. This approach fosters trust and confidence in our patients, team members, and community.

COLLABORATION

We understand the strength of teamwork, mutual respect, and shared purpose in creating innovative solutions to deliver exceptional care.

EXCELLENCE

We are committed to providing the highest quality standards to support patient-centered care and to strive for excellence in every endeavor.

Revere Health Leadership

Revere Health is an independent, physician-owned, and physician led network of multi-specialty practices. Our organization is overseen by a Board of Directors comprised of physician shareholders who have ultimate authority to represent and make decisions on behalf of all member-shareholders. The Board relies on the expertise of the organization’s administrative leadership, including a CEO, COO and other experienced executives.

ABOUT UTAH

If you're considering working or living in Utah, take a look at all the Beehive state has to offer.

Population

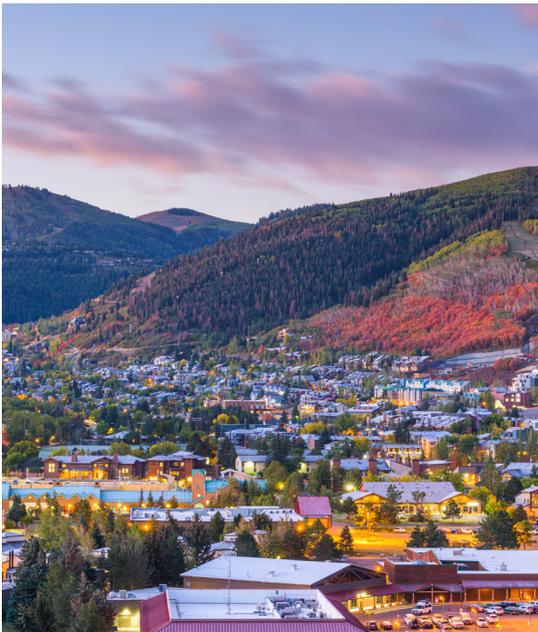

Utah has experienced an 18.3% growth in population during the last decade — the most of any state. With well over three million residents, Utah is poised to continue its growth, with estimates projecting 5.8 million residents by 2065. The state's population remains the youngest in the country, ensuring a vibrant future workforce for its growing economy. Utah boasts the highest fertility rate, the largest average household size, and the youngest median age (31) of any state.

Healthcare

With high marks across the board — from life expectancy to health-related behaviors — Utah is one of the healthiest and most health-conscious states in the country. Utah has the lowest rate of per capita cancer deaths in the nation and was ranked the 5th healthiest state in the nation according to American Community Survey data (2019). Utah ranks as the 1st lowest state in the following areas: excessive drinking, smoking, cancer deaths, and diabetes. Utah also ranks second lowest for: child poverty, preventable hospitalizations, and senior health complications.

Climate and outdoor recreation

Utah is home to some of the country's most beautiful and diverse natural vistas, including five national parks, eight national monuments, two national recreation areas, and six national forests. The state also boasts over 35 million acres of public lands and more than 20,000 miles of trails with 550 access points. Statewide, more than 85% of Utahns live within 15 minutes of a trailhead. Utah offers a four-season climate with lots of sunshine and low humidity. Mountain ranges protect the Salt Lake metropolitan area from harsh weather while receiving hundreds of inches of The Greatest Snow on Earth®. Utah's geography includes mountains and fertile valleys, arid deserts, sand dunes, and thriving pine forests. Average daytime high temperatures range from 37 °F in January to 93 °F in July.

VALUE-BASED CARE FAQs

What is value-based care?

Traditionally, the healthcare industry has operated under a fee-for-service model where providers are paid based on the number of procedures they perform or patients they see. The providers take on more risk in a value-based care model, as they are paid by their ability to improve health outcomes, reduce costs, and increase patient satisfaction. The heart of the matter is that healthcare costs are rising at an unsustainable rate. Revere Health recognizes this, and that's why we've made the shift to value-based care. We believe we have a responsibility as healthcare providers to lower the cost of care without sacrificing quality.

How does VBC improve health outcomes?

Value-based care physicians focus on preventative, proactive care, to help their patients avoid complicated chronic conditions like diabetes, high blood pressure, or obesity in the first place. Providers and healthcare systems that participate in value-based programs with insurance companies are incentivized to improve the quality of patient care. These systems are required to report on specific quality measures and demonstrate how their actions have resulted in better health outcomes. This reporting helps providers identify gaps in care like a missed follow-up appointment or screening.

How does VBC reduce costs?

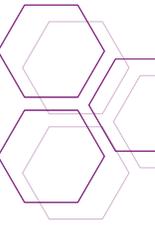

Reducing the cost of healthcare is about being aware of the aspects of care that are the most expensive (i.e., emergency room visits, hospital readmissions, brand-name medications, etc.) and doing our part as healthcare providers to protect patients from unnecessary spending. Patients won't always see those cost savings translate to immediate reductions in their insurance premiums, but they can see an immediate difference in their out-of-pocket costs by choosing to get their care from health organizations that practice value-based care.

How does VBC increase patient satisfaction?

A key component of value-based care is coordination. At Revere Health, our team members prioritize timely, effective communication to ensure patient health data is accurate and available when and where it is needed across all teams—from those within Revere Health to those with other healthcare systems—creating a holistic, patient-centered approach. A synchronized care team is essential to a better, more efficient patient experience. Value-based care encourages patients to play a more dynamic role in their healthcare.

How does VBC benefit patients?

When providers proactively anticipate patients' health needs, rather than treating only the presenting illness, care and health outcomes markedly improve and services are more integrated and coordinated. Patients also benefit from better access to care (same-day appointments, telehealth, improved scheduling) as well as improved communication with providers and transparent, measurable results related to value and cost of care.
